...What Would Jesus Want Us To Do?

Cultivating a positive parish environment is an effort that begins with each baptized believer professing faith in God as disciples of Jesus Christ. It is not enough for the believer to mimic the actions of Jesus as expressed in the Gospels. The believer must also commit to fulfilling what Jesus asks of us so that all may come to know God the Father through Him. Black Catholics, very engaged in their faith, seek deeper discipleship and relationship with others through Jesus yet often have their experiences and cultural perspectives relegated to the Peripheries of the expression of our Roman Catholic faith tradition. This work seeks to establish Christ as the center of any effort of evangelization in our parishes and dioceses, empowering us to serve as dynamic evangelists capable of meaningfully engaging Black Catholics as integral members of one, holy, universal Body of Christ. To accomplish this, an important question is asked and answered: what would Jesus want me to do cultivate a positive parish environment?
