

BLACK CATHOLIC HISTORY MONTH MOMENT

Clara Leach was born in Willow Spring, North Carolina, on July 11, 1939. She had nine siblings. Her mother was named Caretha Bell (Sapp) Leach. Her father, Otha Leach, was a sharecropper and the family lived in Wake County, North Carolina, on a tobacco farm. Leach attended high school at Fuquay Springs Consolidated High School and graduated when she was sixteen, as second in her class. She went to college at North Carolina A&T State University, a historically black university. While there, she was a participant in the Greensboro sit-ins.

Leach joined the United States Army in order to pay for her nursing school education. When she graduated, in 1961, she was commissioned a second lieutenant in the United States Army Nurse Corps.

After graduation Leach worked at Brooke Army Medical Center. In 1961 she became staff nurse at the hospital at Fort Dix. While there, she also participated in an intensive care program at Fitzsimons Army Medical Center. In 1963, she left her position at Fort Dix to work at the 121st Evacuation Hospital in South Korea. She attended classes at Fort Sam Houston and later became an instructor there. She was at Fort Sam from 1964 until 1967. After 1967, she returned to graduate school, earning a master's degree in medical-surgical nursing from the University of Minnesota School of Nursing.

Adams taught at Walter Reed Army Medical Center starting in 1969. She became the Director of Nursing at Fort George G. Meade in 1974. The following year she attended the United States Army Command and General Staff College, graduating in 1976. She was the first woman to graduate from the college with a degree in military arts and sciences. After graduation, Adams-Ender started working as a hospital inspector at United States Army Health Services Command post at Fort Sam Houston.

In 1991, Adams-Ender was selected as Commanding General, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, and served in this capacity as well as that of Deputy Commanding General of the United States Military District of Washington until her retirement in 1993. She is the former president of Caring About People With Enthusiasm. In 2001 she published a memoir: My Rise to the Stars: How a Sharecropper's Daughter Became an Army General.

NOTEWORTHY

...Today is the last Sunday of the church year the Feast of Christ the King. The Gospel Reading for today, offers a very different view of a king. Here in this reading the King of Kings is handing on the cross between two criminals. One criminal is jeering at Jesus to save himself if he is really the Christ and the other is seeking mercy and as Jesus to remember him when he comes into his kingdom. There is a song by Gregory Porter that signals that many of us are looking for a king in finery. Many of us prepare for that king; yet Jesus was found in the alley, with the lowly and those most in need of God's mercy. This is the King we celebrate on Christ the King. A King is very in touch with his people. A king who came down from heaven to walk with his people. A King who still offers his people hope and forgiveness.

... Harriette Peterson, our Parish Nurse wishes to thank everyone who donated a coat or jacket. Thanks to your generosity over 130 coats were collected.
